Piemonte

On the border with France and Switzerland, Piedmont translates to "foot of the mountains". These mountains are the defining characteristic of the region. The warmer southern facing slopes are used for Nebbiolo, the dominate grape in Barolo & Barbaresco, and Barbera. With Dolcetto & Moscato on the northern facing slopes.

Veneto

Dating back to the Roman Empire, Veneto is among the foremost wine producing regions in Italy. Known for Soave, Valpolicella, Amarone & everyone's new favorite: Prosecco.

Toscana

Located in central Italy along the Tyrrhenian coast, Tuscany is home to some of the world's oldest and most notable wines, Chianti & Brunello being the most famous along with "Super Tuscan" i.g.t. red blends. Tuscan wine dates to the 8th century BC.

Southern Italy

The regions of southern Italy vary in topography but the unifying characteristic of a warm to hot climate leads to richer wines.

Napa Valley

Napa Valley is considered one of the premier wine regions in the world. The combination of unique geography & geology with a Mediterranean climate, make Napa Valley wines sought after for their complexity and fruit forward profile.

Sonoma

Sonoma County is heavily influenced by its close proximity to the Pacific Coast shoreline. Cool nights & temperate days create the perfect conditions to draw in layers of oceanic fog. Grapes thrive in this climate!

Oregon

The heart of the Oregon wine industry lies in the Willamette Valley which is most famous for producing Pinot Noir. Although cultivation of this Noble varietal can be challenging, Oregon's Pinot Noir is sophisticated & compelling.

Washington

Washington has ideal geography and conditions for growing premium Bordeaux varietals. Vines produce grapes of consistent quality, resulting in strong vintages year after year.
